

November 04, 2025: On Sheriff MAC My Heel's Gold Star Cover-up in Las Vegas

Sheriff MAC-MY HEEL:

Today, I read your 'After-Action Report' on the Cybertruck Explosion at Trump International Hotel in Las Vegas. This was a really fine piece of police work you did here. I read 78 pages and learned absolutely nothing at all.

This is the kind of report that will make you Governor one day! Kudos! And congrats on your upcoming promotion! It does indeed pay to play (along) with the 'house' Am-I-Right?

Some of my favorite parts are when you throw New Orleans Police under the bus for not playing nice enough with the Feds; when you rub your nose into the asses of all the 'higher-ups' that will be throwing your report in the trashcan; and when you so politely hid every aspect of what could have caused active duty military to drive a rented Tesla Truck (manufactured by the man running the national surveillance satellites) into the valet or as you say 'porte cochere' of a hotel owned by the President of the USA.

'Classified' due to 'concerns regarding National Security' - sounds like something I would like to know more about. I would like to learn more about whether he was being illegally spied upon and subjected to over-lording extortions coming from Elon Musk and Donald Trump.

How did his wife find out about his affair? What EXACTLY is going on inside of the military these days that caused two US Army members to both cause terror attacks on January 01, 2025?

I guess we will never know - just like we will never know what happened in Las Vegas during Trump's first term as president either will we? Can anyone say 'gambling problems'? Shhh... it's just a little innocent 'hush money'!

In keeping with the spirit of the Fusion Center model, all information obtained through the course of the investigation was shared among all members of the investigative team. Before Sheriff McMahon's third press conference, where he intended to provide updates on a manifesto that was recovered among Livelsberger's digital devices, the FBI notified him that the Department of Defense had deemed the manifesto classified, and LVMPD could no longer release further information to the public. Due to concerns regarding national security, LVMPD halted its investigation to allow its federal partners to take the lead, at the direction of the Department of Defense.

knows about it, there's an obvious security risk," the source said.

PBA spokesman Dennis Sheehan dismissed the concern, insisting: "There's not a scintilla of evidence that this was anything more than a conversation about what somebody heard in the rumor mill."

Owes casinos 2.5M

Hartman fed that mill with frequent casino gambling sprees in which he won and lost hundreds of thousands of dollars. He now owes a total of $2.5 million to three Trump-controlled Atlantic City casinos — Trump's Castle, Trump Plaza and Resorts International.

According to complaints filed by the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement, Hartman last September gambled at Trump Plaza and Trump's Castle using an $817,000 certified check drawn from his "special account No. 1" at an Irving Trust branch in lower Manhattan.

Law enforcement sources acknowledged they are interested in Hartman's use of the check. But they refused to say whether it came from his escrow account, which contained money entrusted to him by law clients.

The gaming complaints charge that officials of Trump's Castle improperly accepted the check to reduce Hartman's outstanding debt of $1 million before first verifying its validity.

The complaints also charge that Trump's wife, Ivana, chief officer of Trump's Castle, improperly boosted Hartman's credit from $500,000 to $1 million without first checking his debts at other casinos.

Trump spokesman Gary Selinger declined comment.

Morgenthau's office began investigating Hartman's gambling last October after the Division of Gaming Enforcement opened its own probe of the circumstances under which the casinos gave Hartman credit.

The News has learned that at approximately the same time, Hartman sought help from Arnold Wexler, director of the Council on Compulsive OH! And I almost forgot. . . Enjoy your quiet 'safe spaces' while I endure another round of Donald's acoustic bombardment routines that invade my life every single day - INSIDE OF MY FRIGGIN' HOME!

LVMPD realizes commissioned and civilian employees may be exposed to cumulative physical and mental trauma that can have a detrimental effect on their overall well-being. Trauma affects each person differently, and the cumulative effect of involvement in significant events increases the likelihood of mental health issues that might lead to a decline in work performance. LVMPD continuously looks for new, innovative, and sustainable ways to provide the best mental health care for its employees. Seriously, these look like some nice ways to relax and unwind. Sure wish I could enjoy some quiet time - inside of my own home.

But, then again, I am not on the 'ProTeam' of 'Tactical Performance' so I don't have that luxury.

In addition to mental health care, LVMPD recently entered into a contract with ProTeam Tactical Performance.¹³ ProTeam offers a state-of-the-art approach to dealing with work-related injuries, treating first responders like professional athletes and helping them return stronger and healthier after injury. Making physical health a priority is convenient, with ProTeam's employees and equipment located close to the Employee Wellness Bureau building (see Figure 14).

2. Misinformation and Conspiracy Theories

As information began to come in about the Cybertruck explosion at Trump International Hotel, the nation began drawing similarities to the terrorist attack in New Orleans just six hours prior. Knowing of the attack in New Orleans, LVMPD executive staff and the PIO strongly emphasized delivering fact-based media briefings. Although this approach might not have eliminated misinformation or conspiracy theories completely, it curbed speculation and preserved the credibility of the investigation. By contrast, in its media brief, the New Orleans Police Department (NOPD) mourned the lives lost in its own tragedy. The brief featured numerous representatives from jurisdictions across Louisiana, including senators and mayors. Each party spoke on the event and hinted at tensions between the FBI and NOPD. Statements suggested the FBI had information about the attack but was withholding it from the public. These statements fueled conspiracy theories and eroded community trust.

As Sheriff McMahon structured his media briefs with the assistance of the PIO, he included those who would provide important information regarding the explosion, including the ATF and FBI. Several political and community members expressed interest in showing their support, but the sheriff clarified that these media briefings were intended to focus on official updates. As a result of this structured approach, major news outlets began noting the contrast between NOPD's and LVMPD's media briefings, often commending LVMPD for its efficiency and professionalism, and the evident strength of its partnerships with federal agencies.
